WHEN ONLY THE BEST HARDWOOD DECKING WILL DO...

If you're considering building a new deck or fence you should know that not all decks and fences are built equally and it pays to do some research. Naturally, this should begin with the wood. It needs to be beautiful and durable – able to withstand temperature and moisture differences year after year. If you start with high quality wood you can be assured that your deck or fence will last much longer. For one thing, using better quality materials means it will look newer longer. Most of the best builders already know about Kayu wood for decks, fences, and soffits. And now many individuals are beginning to know about and understand the value of using this luxurious wood in, and around their homes.

These exotic hardwoods look elegant wherever they're used: private residences, restaurants, penthouse condos, and backyards

There are many options when it comes to decking materials. And as a consumer, it's important to know what you're getting into as you are attaching it to your home. Many people don't realize that exotic hardwoods, such as Kayu Batu are available in Canada.

These beautiful hardwoods are extremely durable – resistant to abrasion, wear and dents also very resistant to decay – with pricing comparable to clear grade softwoods and composite plastics. Take a look at a wood called Kayu Batu. These exotic hardwoods look elegant wherever they're used: private residences, restaurants, penthouse condos, and backyards.

Kayu Brand Decking products are easy to maintain and hold their deep, rich, look when cared for with a quality oil finish. They can also be left bare and allowed to take on that silver fading that gives the wood a Mediterranean charm. Kayu Brand Decking follows sustainable forest management practices that meet and exceed the highest standards. Wood harvesting is careful and selective. The trees regenerate naturally after logging. But enrichment planting also follows, resulting in more trees growing back than there were to start.

When you purchase your Kayu wood from one of the selected dealers, they will consult you through its care and maintenance. The wood is already kiln dried, so there is minimal shrinkage. Its high density makes it naturally resistant to termites and fires. You can give it a quick pressure wash every spring to let it gradually acquire that silvery sun-touched finish, or stain it annually to maintain its rich, deep mahogany hue.

If your builder doesn't know about Kayu, you should direct him or her to learn more about this durable and elegant product. You can also investigate more about this wood yourself at an online gallery at www.kayu.ca. Jim Labelle of Kayu Canada Inc is the exclusive distributor of Kayu wood and other exotic wood products in Canada. He will be happy to answer questions about the sustainable forest management practices of his suppliers. He can also suggest the best fasteners, hardware and UV treatments for your particular project.
